Keith R. Czechowicz is an attorney at Brownson Norby, PLLC in Minneapolis, Minnesota. A cum laude graduate of William Mitchell College of Law, Keith comes to Brownson Norby with substantial experience in the defense of employers and insurers in workers' compensation matters at prior stints with two prominent twin cities workers' compensation defense firms.

Keith's practice has an emphasis on:

- Workers' Compensation Defense

Keith has represented, and continues to represent, municipalities and governmental entities in workers' compensation matters. Keith also represents insurers, including as Portfolio Counsel, as well as corporations and self-insured employers in workers' compensation matters.

Keith's experience includes handling all aspects of workers' compensation defense matters, including appearing at workers' compensation hearings, mediations, and other proceedings. He handles workers' compensation depositions, and researches and authors motions, and all types of pleadings necessary for the successful defense of workers' compensation matters. Keith also focuses on prompt, timely handling, and disposition, of intervention claims as they may be asserted in workers' compensation matters.

His workers' compensation experience also includes work on appellate matters before the Minnesota Supreme Court in the cases of:

Schuetz v. City of Hutchinson, he authored an appellate brief to the Minnesota Supreme Court on behalf of the City of Hutchinson.

Keith prides himself on maintaining up-to-date knowledge on this dynamic field to ensure that the firm's business and insurance clients are compliant and ahead of the curve. Keith possesses strong analytical reasoning skills, and is an adept creative thinker, qualities which translate well to his work in the firm's workers' compensation defense practice.

Keith has demonstrated proficiency in conducting complex and thorough research and investigation, a skill set that has been essential in legal and factual analyses, as well as in developing case strategy.
